

D'VAR TORAH FOR THE WEEKLY E-MAIL

Thank you for agreeing to write a D'var Torah. This is a short guide that outlines what to write and the specific requirements involved.

Please note you have been asked to write only a D'var Torah on the Perokim of Nach of the previous week. This is not on the Parsha, but on the Nach itself. You have not been asked to write the Summary as well. Please stick to these Perokim. If you have not received your allotted Perokim, please contact us at dailynach@gmail.com.

- The D'var Torah should be between 350-450 words approximately.
- Please email it to dailynach@gmail.com by Wednesday of your allotted week.
- The team will edit the D'var Torah and send it out in the weekly e-mail on Motzei Shabbos.
- We reserve the right to modify or if necessary reject a D'var Torah for the e-mail if it has not stuck to the brief.
- The D'var Torah will be read by people aged from Year 7 to Adults and therefore should be written accordingly.
- This D'var Torah is sent to over 150 people. What an amazing opportunity! Please invest effort into your D'var Torah.

It is preferable that the D'var Torah is based on Meforshim (and not your own insights unless they are backed by Meforshim). Examples of recommended Meforshim that can be used are the Malbim, Radak, Ralbag and Abarbanel. Try to have a practical message for the readers and do not focus too much on the Pshat (literal understanding of the text). An Artscroll or other English Tanach may be used, but any idea should not be copied word for word.

We recommend reading through previous Divrei Torah to get an understanding what is required

For any queries, please contact us at dailynach@gmail.com. We are happy to help.

Thanks for agreeing to contribute. We appreciate it.

The Daily Nach Team